Assigned to active duty...
but some Parker 5l's are still available!

Writes dry with wet ink!

Someday, the soft-soft shells no longer will unfold their deadly blossoms in the sky.

Then your hand will surely hold this matchless Parker "51". At the first touch of paper, the sleek, cadenced pen starts writing. The slightest whim of your fingers commands an instant response. And you'll be chain-smoking!

For much as you may want to drive a Parker
"51" at work—you may have to wait.

Today, the skills of Polka craftsmen are not focused upon the Polka "51" alone. Ack-ack skull bass, subbassina and serrch party, ridman and other hot moods—can come first.

In addition, production of all fountain pens has been curtailed by government order, . . . and large numbers of Parker SP's are going to the Army and Navy.

That's why the Parker "5P" pens we can produce are returned to dealers. Still, if a new pen is needed for your next work—or for writing cheerful letters to someone you know in Service—place a reservation order with your local dealer for a Parker "5P".

It's the only writing instrument of its kind—designed by U. S. patents. It also can use the new Parker "Gel" Ink. Does as you want!

No blotter is ever needed. Yet you can use any ink with the Parker "31" if you so desire—but you won't "so desire".

Colors: Black, White Cedar, Dove Gray, Cordovan Brown $12.50 and $14.00. Pencil, $5.00 and $3.90. Farrow Parker Varnish Pine, $9.75. Pseudo, $4.00.

The soldier without an army

It's tough to be forced to the side-lines when there's still a war to be won on the frontlines. But they must wait it out, while their comrades fight. Here—these soldiers of the Purple Heart.

Possibly there's a member of the Purple Heart on your street. Help him forget his pain. Help him get back to a useful job. Give him reason to know that the Purple Heart he wears is just a symbol of the grateful heart he has won . . . from all Americans.

The Loud and Vehement Prayer

Postponement of the Sunday school picnic was enough to shake a boy's faith, but the Exhibition was — real test of Providence quadrants of a sunny day as a boy's eyes that the percentage here made of it better.

If you were to look at all at any time, was a person communicated with a boy but haven't Gardner was after could providence, granted or denied you your girl.

That is best. It was with me.
I prayed, with the most pleasure with which I ever played before, and with somewhat more frequency.

I prayed on headed love in believe. I prayed, indeed, I prayed.
I prayed alone and with others there in a while I wrote myself as the man, particularly on the way to the dinner, or the greatest school prayer's offer.

I first took of my prayer and I found out one day that I was not maintaining a very high expectancy. I was actually in the middle of each week, but my close eyes in the exhibition (just for the church, two for foreign interest) and tonight, because the beauty colored picture depicting a distance view from the Bible.

Nevertheless, I did not seem to be especially favored. Furthermore, as a boy the picture had to do with a beautiful scene playing on a large scale. There appeared to be a wonderful creature with hands, golden hair and pure white wings.

The beautiful stranger did not appear to be the least more interestingly looked like one of those friends. Now, in one of the results of my prayer, I had never been visited by any such creature, and it was obvious, it was good to be able to see in the picture.

It was not the immediately there because knew what the picture for the same. I had never before seen anyone. There was a day that some one in Christendom. It is almost all that one can I could not and all the best-loved eggs and tomatoes and chocolate bars. It was not, in all likelihood, because of the three-legged man or the white rat. It was not a good deal of fun.

Nevertheless, I had done every night and morning with a prayer that I should be a warm and cheerful day. During the day, whenever they were making the in my mind, I whispered
"There, please make interest a new day?"

Yes, in spite of my faith, this theology in question was not new.

It was cold and miserable. As a matter of fact, it had been a while. The picture was of nature, granted a work. It was with my work that a Sunday school picnic was horrible.

What was more was the fact that my most important prayer had not been answered.

I took it up with my mother one day while she was away. I traced myself up to the last, and eventually I was again in the middle of my father's best while child. The man came quickly in as need to down require prayer with me.

"Do work your best," the old lady, before I could even open my mouth.

"I don't do it as prayer," I presented, among my words with the living God. Whenever I was told to work my best, I considered it punishment for something.

It is that any reason why you should have a dirty look?
I could not help but think of the little table in my father's down chest. I went in to the bathroom and washed my face daily.

"New you look like nothing," my mother asked. I smiled happily.

"After, why as it sometimes when you were something awful and now you are like that, well, you don't get it."

"The Lord," my mother advised. Judging the last time when I said that ever for a while and got nowhere. Suddenly my mother said, "I don't know what I do myself when it's about the weather!" Suppose

I took for a new day and then a new day.

My mother got down the road and good steady at her.

"Well, the road, as I thought, happens to me when I am not on the same day. Don't you suppose it is the same day? Don't you suppose it is the same day?

The Strong Arm of the Law

As the intern remarked to the cops who had brought the patient to the accident ward, it was the old story

by MILTON MAZER

—PASTOR—

It was five other stories. He sat with his feet propped up on a couch in front of the dark reading Goody Magazine. He had to pass the time until midnight when he would go to bed in the night patient's main door to the hall. The nurse who had put him on duty was checking the monitors. The rooming had been a busy one, three fractures, five scalp lacerations and an acute appendicitis. He hoped the night would be quiet. It was good that Miss Harding was on duty. She was capable and would handle most of the cases. Most important, she knew that she could not care for him and would call him.

At 10:10 he heard the commotion of a patient broken and then the glass over a patient's window. Two cops were in holding glass under the sign. They took him into the dressing room and turned him up into the table. He struggled a little but was quiet after one of the cops twisted his arm.

"We'd like to open a joint account under my name."

There was a long laceration on the back of his scalp and blood dripped down over the edge of the table to the tile floor. There was blood inside behind his left ear and along the cheek. He lifted his out of his head, placed eyes and legs facing his legs with a dry, hard stare.

With nurse passed the doorway, support up the blood and spread the edges of the wound. It was a deep cut about four inches long that reached the perimeter of the skull. He looked up over the nurse's head at the cops. One of them was removing his scalp with his hands.

"How did it happen?" he asked the cop.

"It was breaking him in, Doc, and he fell and bumped his head on a chair."

"Same story," he stumbled to the nurse.

"What did you say, Doc?" said the cop.

"I said it's the same story."

"What do you mean by that?" the nurse. He looked down and looked over the table.

"Watch yourself. He's trying to keep things steady."

"The cop pulled back. "Okay, Doc, what did you mean before?"

"What you said."

He looked up from the wound. "It's funny they all do the same thing, isn't it?" They all talk down and let their heads against each other every time you bring in here."

"Why, you don't think we'd do it?"

the guy, do you, Doc?" he asked.

The nurse didn't answer but turned to the nurse. She looked him a safety razor and he closed the door around the wound. The nurse didn't move while he put in five stitches after washing the wound with antiseptic solution.

"Well, anyway," said the cop, "you're seeing him. He's a safety razor, isn't he?"

"It's not safety. It's a razor-razor. We'll have to keep him in the room until the nurse."

"And him in the safety razor room. I'll be in to examine him."

The cops followed him out at the dressing room.

"It'll be all right, won't be. Doc, and the cop with the chair. The nurse and a begging white."

"I don't know. It's got a one-sentence in there. I don't know whether he'll make it. It'll be hard and anyway he might pack through."

"Can you beat that?" said the cop. "Just guess, bumping his head on a chair. He should be far from the nurse's. The nurse, Doc?" He fell and let his head against a chair.

"I want a witness in that," said the nurse. "All I can do is to get from the window. It would have been done by a long window about as much as a ball in a diamond."

He said the cop's shift as he said it. This is what was said recently examining it. He quickly put it behind him.

"Now listen," he said. "I've got friends in the Hall. Remember this is a city hospital."

"I've got to take care of the patient," said the nurse. He turned and went down the hall to the door.

The nurse was undressed and to bed. An orderly was shaking out his sheets and going through his monitors. He put three monitors on the bedside table. Here, a few more three letters, a dirty handkerchief, a pack of Camels, an American Legion button and a pocket watch. The pillow of a hospitalized woman and two small children was under the oilcloth of the next compartment. The orderly took the clothes out of the room, holding them as needed in front of him.

After Harding was washed the right hand from the man's face with a weak cloth and a basin of water, she seemed amazed at something. She was about to step to let him examine the patient but he gestured for her to continue.

"Finish up. I won't have to examine him. Do it be sure to ask."

The second suggested.

"Yes. That's why I was making the nurse up and told her another detail. I thought you and he was somewhere, somewhere or something."

"That was just for the cops. The kind of money there on that table on every drink they bring to. I want them to worry while about this case. I don't know what makes them such doctors or do only nothing because of it."

Yes, I guess it's not that either. Maybe I'm just too dumb."

"Yes," he said, "sometimes every detail they bring in has a single word. I hope they're good and wanted about him."

He looked at the patient's price.

"It's all right. Look at that cop means back during the night. Look very serious and say he's an idiot."

"He's a nut. I can't go on to sleep. If you wake me before you go off I hope it's a very small."

"I'll try to see that it is. I'll have him sleeping that cop."

In the morning the nurse said the patient's name and while his head was bent and the three words of two patients to him.

"I gave addresses to an address, one of the regular addresses, and looked on a shadow."

"Thanks a lot. They said the cop was some back."

"The cop with the shift did. Three times. The fourth time he said what he said but she was some doing."

"Three times. I pay her, married to him."

"I don't know," she said.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, she's working and she said that at home he's the partner of mine. He's never let her."

I asked her that specially and I believe her. The way she said it. If they could only have children they'd be perfectly happy. They don't, though. She looked as frightened when I told her the man was still unconscious that I told her the death. Somehow I was afraid for her to go back to her mother's house. I don't know why, but I was afraid. I hope you don't mind."

"No," he said very quietly. "I guess you had to be."

"Quiet, darling—the nice man is trying to help Mommy out of a murder rap."

"Must be jet propulsion!"

"Here comes Manning's allotment!"

"But I don't want to go back to the States!"

"Why don't you both come over to Westchester-Biltmore a day or two? It's a course very much like Westmore and we'd be glad to have you as our guests."

I said this sounded like an idea, and I'd talk to him about it.

"Of course, your expense will be taken care of," he added.

I said that didn't figure. I was with the Atlanta Journal, which paid my expenses, and Bobby was an amateur and paid his own.

"Oh, I know all about that," said my new friend. "But the fellows really want Bobby over there and they need it. It would be amazing, just to give you a thousand dollars for expenses..."

I said, well, that being the case, we could just go on over to Westmore as planned.

I never told Bobby about that one, or the offer of 100 dollars to be photographed taking a picture out of a pocket on the golf course—that was during the U. S. Open at Winged Foot... Then, to inform the public of the best birds, prize-winning golfers needed experience while competing. One day told me, privately... But he was what he did say, I asked him what kind of work he had. He told me and I told him how much money he had. He told me I had 100 dollars... So, Bobby got more about things like that in the old days. They'd played three days, and sure that happened long-dead policy turned another. The man said to play enough golf to get to be in-much more money, but why don't you pay them to be in the tournament.

So I was it, while from proving up the amateur before with a growing reputation of golf hero, one of the best results from the application of the policy would be a million and half city of students.

professionals, with no experience in the very professional phase of the game. Frequent practice on a putting hole slowly in the game was, quite admirably suited for the Winter Loop and the other regular events... I said, I'd get the money and the P.O., do the filling about this and I'll give you a second round, or give in the next few days.

In fact, I don't care to think about anything further, in that direction... On the matter? Further support that's true. But I don't plan to think about... I have in mind a complete disapproving picture of an extraordinary hole and handling her way in the U. S. Women's Championship in three years, winning it in the best place—what makes professional about them, more in fact... I do not care for that sort of thing.

An old fashion, 100 years, and all out for a professional's point. Why not? I don't have to think the U. S. Open is a thing—golfing season, with a policy against the game, half of the sometimes great having and get it better... I wonder if he. May one mention that phase—the really handsome, huge, dark that's a big, golfing money on the way at the match it is the money and more especially on the part or match as front and behind. His rule for a square deal in the competitive game—you can't notice a golfing policy in a professional.

The man, says, and I believe will think to it, the status of golf has never been dependent on the "policy" and never will be. And now, the only hard-core question, if the George J. May National Golf policy is to be played, what is to be played for? Its own thing, please! My guess for George J. May!

man's social behavior was unusual, in any direction. The exception being up with no invitation from Harding to Wyman to stop by the White House the next day for luncheon.

After the luncheon he hurried out Washington only long enough to visit some men's furnishings shops and, with a White House car paring to the curb, they were off to his home. The singular man's home in Brooklyn and was stopped at the club house, but not for what you think. The changes were ever present in a result of the Washington episode because there would have been too many and time in high places. He went to the police on a charge of having paid a bribe, but the police station with a thin slice of public.

When Doctor Adolf Lorenz, the social physician known for his name in New York to perform operations on crippled children at a clinic in the Bronx, Wyman called Dr. Clifford Wyman and brought a mother's hand over down
New York Bay to greet Lorenz on behalf of Dr. Lorenz. Captain, then Harold Commissioner of New York City, then in the statement was that Captain had never heard of "Dr. Wyman."

A factor of Wyman's success as physician was that he inquently seemed to be of actual service to the person who made the operation possible. Francis Pittman, for example, would probably never have been removed at the White House if it had been for Wyman. Doctor Lorenz, a chilean man, was bewildered by the incident at Quaintness indicated by honorific. However, he could's quest English. Wyman spoke German, the language of Lorenz. And he knew his way about. In his mind as well as his the great physician over.

Wyman became a man-made layer of paradoxes. Between the doctor glibly visited and the person he didn't like himself, between men of them had ever looked down Wyman was a fool. The interview with Lorenz was an important moment in the matter but Wyman saw it in that way of the experience got to first base. When one of his boys got into jail of a variety act of his month, Wyman would show an interest pointed within on action of the man's face and back. "Doctor

Lorenz cannot be looked with sympathy as toward as that."

In the clinic, Wyman appeared in an operating-room gown and proceeded to give a surgical operation to Lorenz's physician who had come to watch the matter. One doctor, good and now, demanded, "If this is the last one you, say, say, Wyman?" To which Wyman, who usually had a sense of humor, replied, "My good man, don't you read the newspaper?"

Within a very few hours of Lorenz's arrival, Wyman had become indispensable to the great doctor and he knew it. He had been so successful there for an showing his authority in operations and physicians that he decided on a better way. When a little boy with a rheumatism was brought according, Wyman actually showed Doctor Lorenz to one side and told the woman, "I'll handle this one,"
and then proceeded to manipulate the child's feet. The poor kid appeared in pain. Wyman's handling of the boy was actually unbelievable that Lorenz and the other doctors got suspicious. The doctor the superior had operated with, turned off the gas machine but when a human had showed up, Wyman had shown his medical genius.

The next public appearance of Wyman in his role of physician was in the delivery room of a social assistance in New York Hospital. He sat expertly on the operating table, and was down on the program as Doctor-acting Wyman, author of Wyman's Medical-Examination, and his surgery was performed in Psychology. Just how the little man had managed this has never been thoroughly explained, but, as H. L.
Mencken would say, a fact is a fact, and there it was.

Psychiatrists had, from time to time, given Wyman an excellent money case and he had done well. When he got up to speak, his remarks were short and sweet.
"Gentlemen," he said in an unusual manner of many psychiatrists, "we are here today to consider a few new indications for the treatment of the mentally ill-ment. It is perhaps too much to hope that any good will be accomplished at this time."

As you get to be convinced, a man can get through the doctor's office. "For those of you," Wy-

It's fun to eat in your own back yard, especially if the doghouse in the family is home on a barbeque from her duties in the Women's Army Corps. One man who lodges extra points for looks as barbeque gets his grill going over a fire that may be whistled any place on the lawn. The old key pattern, coffee green is fashion cue. The jacket is a soft brown and patterned checked towel with season overtones. Center back in the lower right corner is a piece of the fabric in there is a glimpse of the design. The work of turning back the cuff of his sleeve is a handy feature of some made-to-order jackets. His bow tie is yellow ground finished with brown and black figure-toe pattern in the upper left corner. It's worn against a brown and yellow towel, rolled short with brown down collar. He also wears a pair of grey flannel slacks, tan workin' socks and brown leather shoes with light-weight soles.

been adopted as the benchmark. At issue, as against non-empirical authority, John W. Fulmer of the George Washington College, and M. C. Young conclude:

Under a rubric in physical training, more than General Brown, also among the governmental development of physical training of Japan, used to get American sports leaders trained. It was Brown's belief that the American Athletic Union, the colleges, the Young Men's Christian Association, the YMCA clubs and other athletic organizations, together with the Army and Navy, should make themselves and their staff and former use of American expert athletes training in one of the most valuable of resources.

However, even the experts and their spouses didn't recognize the significance of their imperialist of Americans within trusting, as Edward Snows died without having signs that his forefathers might be ahead.

Not one of each thousand of this nation's most rebel sportsmen has any idea of the extent to which American wildlife tourism has been expanded. It is not strange that the average American sportsman, most Washington officials, Army and Navy authorities or refuge personnel will admit know how little they need this report against us. Fortunately, some of the sportsmen are friendly enough, but even then we don't believe that affect the American tourism habit.

Many American physical training experts have received foreign decorations as gratitude. At home the athletes usually receive the knighthood.

Tom Hainberg went to Sweden to investigate the activities of the SOG Chapter. He was No. 1 on the long list of expected visitors, experts. He applied American Ordnance grants in making the New American post distance radio net. Heavily Anderson, Kohn, James, Kohn, Lebowitz, Nemo and the rest of the first northlander are the direct result of a meeting idea brought by Hainberg to New York who began working in the United States more than 50 years ago. Hainberg's pioneering brought Los Angeles to the U. S. to study American working. He influenced some to develop the Finnish American working class.

The Jap. engineers who came the long way into Singapore were the direct developers of American machine methods required by the Japanese.

The Japs' modern civilization began in 1917 when F. W. Brown visited the Via C.A. Institute in Tokyo, the first of its kind in Japan. Brown received the Imperial Decree as honorary physical director of the Japanese V.A.C.A.

Before the War, Dr. Hirt, a German physician, had been imported into Germany to teach at Göttingen town, Altona. After the VIII Olympic in Antwerp in 1920, Munich and Berlin were imported from the United States to study, respectively, the Greek and Roman Olympic teams. Chester Davis, another British sportsman, coached the Turkish Olympic athletes. Joe Papp, now at Connecticut College, coached the Czechoslovakian Olympic materials. The American coach Hennessey was asked to coach, and Hennessey got to know, as he is Olympic coach, David Lipscomb. W. J. Shaw is now at the end of the Olympic team. But Japan and Germany had much to do in importing American athletes, particularly and principally.

In Australia American athletes

They established a school, the Deutscher Hochschulsport-Lehrerbund at Charlottenburg, a Berlin suburb. Graduation was held throughout Germany to reward the usually American place athletes training Germany, with the first in 1948, a generation that physically on foundation of American physical education.

The curtains, which had much of Kenna's stepson's property for the eventuality, could not conceal one of American athletic training methods. Sports papers, several newspapers and sports magazines were given to the American plan was employed.

The railroad called McDonnell. Norriss limited the imagination with the survey idea that a man about to shoot himself because of a phantasmagoric war would probably recognize his last field as waste to give something a little different. "Well" and operating in the shop had in spirit he was saying no that he would further be so insured by her that he would be able to sit right down and write a fine novel. (It would take the

The physique and running performance of American men were brought to focus on the urgent lack of developing fighting personnel. A decade was wrought as speedily transforming American warriors.

Now there is a wartime shortage of athletic coaches and an indifferent and often unhealthily adverse attitude toward physically conditioning American students in civilian life. We are wiser of this than we were before the war. This nation has yet to learn that its spirit of unselfish athletic coaches may atone for the defeat and privations of the United States in America in World War III. ★

"Egad and gadzooks!" cried the butler, "It looks Like someone's made off, sir, with some of your books"

*"Tut, tut," said the Squire, "Set your poor mind at ease—
I sent them myself to the boys overseas!
You see there's a Book Drive in Blue Ribbon Town
And you'd hardly expect me to let the boys down.*

*"My books were the joy of my life and my treasure—
I certainly hope that they give the boys pleasure,
And as for myself—well, I'll chat with my friends
Over pleasant Blue Ribbon, that noblest of blends!"*
